Getting the most from the NYS Trauma-Informed Network

WELCOME

TO THE NEW YORK STATE TRAUMA-INFORMED NETWORK

We're here to connect you with other organizations around NYS, bringing you resources and events on a variety of topics that promote trauma-responsive practices.

Our goal is to support champions of trauma responsive practices across the state with improved connection and access to quality resources. Together we can increase the collective understanding of trauma, improve practice, and support resilience throughout New York State.

FOCUS ON:
The Challenge and Opportunity in Using Big Data for Social Change

Focus

Nonprofits and other social change organizations are lagging their counterparts in the scientific and business communities in collecting and analyzing the vast amounts of data that are being generated by digital technology. Four steps need to be taken to improve the use of big data for social innovation. Globally, the world's actors are making efforts to use open data and apply big data to develop solutions to social problems in innovative and collaborative ways. Progress is being made, but the chasm must still be crossed. It is a challenge worth overcoming.

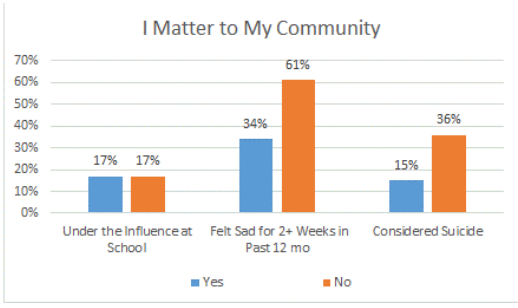
DATA KNOWLEDGE ACTION

Mobilizing Action for Resilient Communities through Policy and Advocacy offers a new toolkit that supports network engagement in policy and advocacy efforts. Examples from networks across the country bring the work to life and companion infographics make it easy to incorporate content in your own presentations.

Dr. Nadine Burke-Harris' TED Talk offers a hallmark example of understanding, applying and applying data for positive action within her pediatric practice.



As part of a focused effort to increase understanding and positive action, one county in Western New York creates an infographic to share local data and inspire change in addressing Adverse Childhood Experiences.

THE PHILADELPHIA ACE PROJECT

The Philadelphia Urban ACE study reminds us that what we study matters and expands understanding on the intersection of trauma, equity and social justice perspectives.

Learning Collaboratives are a great way to take deeper dives into important topics. Using Data -Get to Know Me Better to Serve Me is a presentation deck from a cross-sector learning collaborative in Monroe County. It offers important insights and best practices for engaging and collecting data with diverse populations.
